

ONYX

Onyx is a highly variable material in terms of color, crystalline structure and veining. Every Onyx product should be considered one-of-a-kind.

The material not only varies significantly from block to block, but within most individual blocks, as in photo at left.

Below are some photos of variations in our onyx material.

MULTI COLORED ONYX can range from pale green with little veining or variation in color to something reminiscent of a wild abstract painting.

HONEY ONYX ranges from swirly to striped to mottled and the color ranges from pale whitish/yellow to a brownish/yellow.

WHITE ONYX ranges from partially white with yellow, reddish or rusty colored veining to the very rare almost pure white.
